Purpose

Doors to Wellbeing, a program of The Copeland Center for Wellness & Recovery, Inc., receives partial funding to operate the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA)-funded National Technical Assistance Center to strengthen and support the peer support workforce. Through a national environmental scan, Doors to Wellbeing aimed to understand better how Peer Specialist roles and job descriptions have grown, changed, and evolved.

Given the wide variety of jobs and responsibilities assigned to Peer Specialists, our goal was to assess how closely Peer Specialist job descriptions align with the advertised job descriptions and if the Peer Specialist believed the job aligned with their certification training. We hope the results will demonstrate the growth and potential of the Peer Specialist role. Additionally, we aim to determine how well current Peer Specialist jobs align with the Core Competencies for Peer Workers established through SAMHSA BRSS TACS (Bringing Recovery Supports to Scale).

Methods

The research process was thorough and comprehensive. The surveys were finalized in June 2023, and the first emails were sent in August 2023. Over 49,000 emails were sent to various Peer Specialists and agencies across the country. The survey was meticulously designed, comprising both closed and open-ended questions. These questions covered a wide range of aspects, from the state they lived in, current job title, description of job responsibilities, if peer certification is required, if the role matched the job description, and if the job meets their expectations, among others. This attention to detail ensures the reliability and validity of our research. For the privacy of participants, identifying information pertaining to the individual or agency was removed. We chose to group the information by state due to state certification requirements varying from state to state.

Sample

The survey was presented online for participant access and data collection. Announcements about the survey were emailed to various organizations (national and local) and other stakeholders. The final sample included completed surveys from 628 Peer Specialists in 47 states, including the District of Columbia. Of the states represented, the states with the highest participation were New York (67), Pennsylvania (61), California (59), and North Carolina (56). There were respondents not included in the results due to residing outside the United States. In total, there were 7 outside the US, 6 in Canada, and 1 from Ireland.

Peer Support Worker

Creating connections and relationships while advocating for safety for my participants. I use my lived experience to create a safe place for them to open up .

Reentry CPRS

As a reentry CPRS, I assist individuals struggling with co-occurring disorders who are criminal justice involved. I work one on one and in group settings both while incarcerated and post release. After a potential client submits a reentry referral form to the facility director, I meet one on one with the individual to complete an assessment to determine eligibility for the reentry program. The grant determines who we can work with dependent upon charges, whether they have identified struggling with co-occurring disorders and other factors. If the individual does not meet with requirements of our reentry grant, I refer them to the criminal justice liaisons. We complete the assessment and sign any release or request forms relating to people or organizations that are necessary for coordinating care and protecting the client via HIPPA. After they are accepted into the program, they attend weekly support groups within the jail with fellow inmates which I facilitate. Individuals begin their WRAP plan, which I guide them through, while attending groups. In planning for release clients are typically accepted to a rehab facility then/or halfway or transitional housing. If funding this endeavor is necessary for the client, I submit a check request for deposit and rent to my supervisor, and once the check is cut, I give it directly to their housing manager/owner and return a receipt for records. I prepare backpacks with clothing, shoes, toiletries, food, and other items provided upon release if needed. I provide clients with transportation upon release to their next step whether it is to a rehab facility or housing. Once released and settled, I assist the client in navigating their journey to a life in recovery through resources for achieving their goals. Weekly, I facilitate a support group for released clients in which we share experiences, issues, and situations relating to their recovery as well as continue to edit their WRAP plan along with work from a specific goal sheet. My clients typically graduate and are discharged from the program within six to eight months. However, our team identifies those with specific needs and may work with them longer until they have achieved their goals. As I work with clients individually or within a group, I utilized my lived experience with co-occurring disorders and my own experiences with the criminal justice system to help them in their recovery journey from the same. When clients are exiting the program, I provide a graduation ceremony and signed certificate of completion. In discharging a client, I complete an ASI, SSRQ, TCSU, and GPRA which I provide to our data specialist to input into SWORPS for grant collection. All in all I provide our clients with awareness, education, support via phone call, text, and email at any time, resources, transportation, and most of all hope on their path to recovery.

Reentry CPRS

As a reentry CPRS, I assist individuals struggling with co-occurring disorders who are criminal justice involved. I work one on one and in group settings both while incarcerated and post release. After a potential client submits a reentry referral form to the facility director, I meet one on one with the individual to complete an assessment to determine eligibility for the reentry program. The grant determines who we can work with dependent upon charges, whether they have identified struggling with co-occurring disorders and other factors. If the individual does not meet with requirements of our reentry grant, I refer them to the criminal justice liaisons. We complete the assessment and sign any release or request forms relating to people or organizations that are necessary for coordinating care and protecting the client via HIPPA. After they are accepted into the program, they attend weekly support groups within the jail with fellow inmates which I facilitate. Individuals begin their WRAP plan, which I guide them through, while attending groups. In planning for release clients are typically accepted to a rehab facility then/or halfway or transitional housing. If funding this endeavor is necessary for the client, I submit a check request for deposit and rent to my supervisor, and once the check is cut, I give it directly to their housing manager/owner and return a receipt for records. I prepare backpacks with clothing, shoes, toiletries, food, and other items provided upon release if needed. I provide clients with transportation upon release to their next step whether it is to a rehab facility or housing. Once released and settled, I assist the client in navigating their journey to a life in recovery through resources for achieving their goals. Weekly, I facilitate a support group for released clients in which we share experiences, issues, and situations relating to their recovery as well as continue to edit their WRAP plan along with work from a specific goal sheet. My clients typically graduate and are discharged from the program within six to eight months. However, our team identifies those with specific needs and may work with them longer until they have achieved their goals. As I work with clients individually or within a group, I utilized my lived experience with co-occurring disorders and my own experiences with the criminal justice system to help them in their recovery journey from the same. When clients are exiting the program, I provide a graduation ceremony and signed certificate of completion. In discharging a client, I complete an ASI, SSRQ, TCSU, and GPRA which I provide to our data specialist to input into SWORPS for grant collection. All in all I provide our clients with awareness, education, support via phone call, text, and email at any time, resources, transportation, and most of all hope on their path to recovery.

All 3 of us work 100% Work At Home since the COVID epidemic. We work with our peers telephonically and must carry a caseload of at least 35 peers. We make contact with them while they are still inpatient, then follow them after they discharge and call them as much as-necessary to give them the support they need to advance in the mental health/SUDs recovery. We also connect the peers with housing resources, health provider resources, and any other resources they may need. We also make sure they are aware of all company health resources, and we do HEDIS tasks with them. Sometimes we may have to call protective services or crisis units to respond.
